About the Seminar

Community health and nutrition remain central to sustainable development and human well-being. Rapid urbanization, climate change, food insecurity, and lifestyle transitions are reshaping health outcomes across populations. This seminar aims to bring together academicians, researchers, policymakers, health professionals, and development practitioners to deliberate on emerging challenges and interdisciplinary solutions in community health and nutrition. The seminar will provide a platform for sharing research findings, innovative practices, and policy perspectives to strengthen health systems and promote equitable nutrition outcomes.

About ISDR

The Institute for Social Development and Research (ISDR), established in 2008 in Ranchi, Jharkhand, is an autonomous academic institution dedicated to interdisciplinary research in the social sciences, Humanity & Sciences. With full academic autonomy and a commitment to public accountability, ISDR engages in the scholarly study of contemporary social, political and economic issues. It aims to bridge academic rigor with real-world impact, offering its research to governments, policymakers and civil society. It organizes international & national seminars on a regular basis from 2012. The institute confers awards such as Best Chairperson, Best Speaker, Best Paper, Best Research Article and Best Editor to promote academic excellence. From 2009, it also publishes high-impact journals— International Journal for Social Development, Journal for Social Development, and Journal for Social Reality —alongside scholarly books and edited volumes. ISDR continues to foster knowledge that drives inclusive development.
